GIVE TOURISTS A GOOD TIME

The furnishing of social entertainment to tourists has been something more or less neglected in Honolulu. Wealthy tourists and their families come here quite frequently intending to remain several months, but after they have spent two or three weeks in seeing the sights of the city and islands have often concluded that they have exhausted the pleasures of the place and, finding time hanging heavy on their hands, have left. Those who come here to meet friends, or come provided with letters of introduction to Honolulu folks, have no difficulty in finding agreeable circles in which to become a part, and these tourists are the ones who go away satisfied, taking with them a true appreciation of Honolulu life and the pleasures of the Crossroads, spreading the gospel of the Islands around among their friends.

The others, the ones who come here as strangers, have too few opportunities to meet our people, become acquainted and form those friendships for the people and that aloha for Hawaii that is wanted. There are no theaters here during the greater part of the year and no evening entertainments, and strangers can not know of their own knowledge of the many ways of entertainment, unique and pleasurable, that Honolulu has worked out for themselves. There are many such, and it is the business of those instrumental in bringing the tourists here to see that the strangers within our gates are not allowed to go away without tasting the treats of life in Honolulu. A dissatisfied tourist is the worst advertisement the Islands can have, just as a satisfied one is the best.

There are many forms of amusement here that can not be found so pleasantly elsewhere. Lunch parties to Pearl Harbor by moonlight, surfing and canoeing parties at Waikiki, trolley parties to Tantalus or to the heads of some of the valleys, where for a nominal sum country homes could be secured for the day and where basket lunches could be served, are only some of the things to be enjoyed by tourists. Week-end parties to Haleiwa, excursion parties to the volcano or to beautiful Iao Valley, and a number of other trips could be enumerated, trips that could be made so delightful to the tourists and which would enable them to form acquaintances that departure from Hawaii would be a regret and a return here as much a certainty as circumstances would allow. There are numerous ways in which the work of the Promotion Committee in bringing tourists here could be supplemented by the citizens getting in and without ostentation making their stay here so pleasant that every tourist would be a friend and a promotion committee in himself for the place.

Alexander Young, in employing Mrs. Elizabeth Church to take charge of the social affairs of his two hotels, has the right idea and has shown good judgment in his selection of a social manager. Mrs. Church's duties this winter will be to plan entertainments for the tourist guests of the hotels, suggest ways in which the best that is here for the traveling stranger can be found and generally to carry out some of the suggestions outlined above. Everyone knows how popular the Haleiwa Hotel became, principally because of Mrs. Church's efforts, while later the Hawaiian was popular with her as hostess. Mrs. Church is herself a winsome body and has a charming tact in carrying out the social plans she makes, besides being a leader in the more strenuous matters of swimming, riding and other out-of-door affairs. Honolulu is fortunate in that she will devote her time this winter to making friends for Hawaii.

Manager Hertsche is a capable man of affairs about the two leading hotels, but in the active management of the houses he has not the time to spare that the social side of looking after the guests requires. In Mrs. Church, however, he will have a talented assistant and one peculiarly fitted for the work she has taken up.

The bark Foohing Suey has arrived at New York from Elele and reports having had a hard passage. On September 15, in latitude 30 deg. 45 min. north, longitude 67 deg. 20 min. west, during a heavy gale the main top gallant mast with yards, sails and rigging was carried away. The huge seas which swept over the craft also took with them a standard compass, the boat covers and stays, the light shutters and a portion of the bow.—Call.
